Ittefaq Report

BASIS Institute of Technology and Management (BITM) has trained 4,230 in last one year under the Skills for Employment Investment Program (SEIP). BITM started its SEIP training programs in March 29 last year.

The training was conducted in 12 IT and 2 regular categories. A total of 4,230 were trained free of cost so far, said a press release.

BASIS President Shameem Ahsan said, skilled workforce is an essential for strong and sustainable economic development. Skilled workers are the major drivers of economic growth in the developed countries. Skill is essential for both personal development and overall development of the country. As a part of BASIS' vision to create 1 million IT professionals within 2018, BITM is implementing the SEIP program. After successful completion of the project, the IT companies will get skilled employee according to their need and more employment opportunities will be created for the IT professionals. And the journey of the ICT sector of the country will be enforced by all these initiatives.

BASIS Treasurer and Director-in-Charge of BASIS Institute of Technology Management (BITM), Shah Imraul Kaesh said, BASIS is working towards minimizing the skilled labor shortage prevailing in the industry with the SEIP project. To achieve the same, BITM will start its activities in all the divisions of the country under this project within 2016.

Interested people can register online for the training program by visiting BITM's website (www.bitm.org.bd/seip). Following the registration, applicants have to go through proper qualification tests before getting selected.
